WORKING IN PARTNERSHIP WITH PARENTS

Let's we forget

Welcome back everyone. We have a busy 7-week term ahead with many exciting festive events planned for the children.

A joyous Occasion

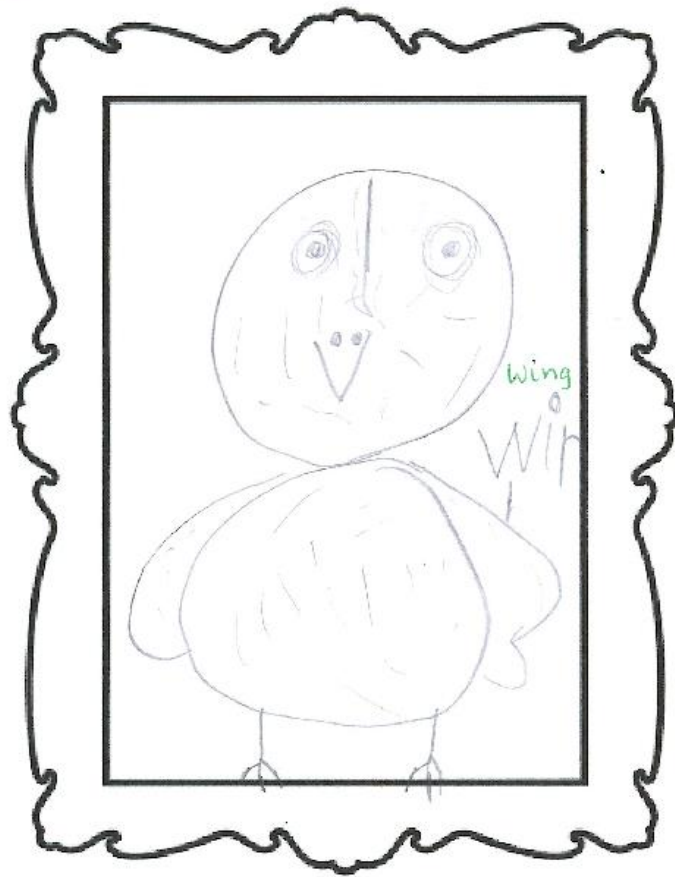

On Saturday 28th October, Miss McPherson looked amazing as she walked down the aisle to join her future husband. The bride and groom had a wonderful wedding; celebrating the occasion with their daughter, Grace, along with family and friends. We wish them both much happiness, and the very best of luck for the future.

Writer of the Month

It is always a joy to read the children's work on the board, and it is often a tricky job choosing the writing to include in the bulletin. The children are always so delighted to be selected by their teachers and proud to have their work displayed. I hope you enjoy reading this month's writing; however, I am not entirely sure that you will be putting Fraser's sandwich recipe on your weekly menu, especially when it would be served with 'a terrible mud smoothie' followed by a slice of 'mud cake'. Fraser's recipe does not give me food envy, but it is an imaginative piece of writing!

An Interesting Sandwich Recipe

Method

1. First put the slice of bread on the table.
2. Next place 200g of very dirty toilet paper on the bread.
3. Then put a chunk of fish scales on the bread.
4. Add 100ml of slimy cow earwax on the bread.
5. Add 6 cups of Chinese hornets on the bread.
6. Then put the other slice of bread onto the top of the other slice of bread.
7. Finally slice sandwich diagonally.

Now you have a terrible sandwich, served with a mud smoothie and mud cake.

It will be sure to keep her in bed.

Spin The Bottle

"Spin the bottle," said Kirsty. "Wait, the person who the bottle lands on has to go to Frankinsien's Cabin." "Is that a deal?" I said. "Is that deal?" "Fine Kirsty," agreed all the girls. (Except Kirsty, of course.) The bottle spun. It landed on Kirsty. "Let's spin again, it can't be me!" yelled Kirsty. "Kirsty it's you who will go" said Emma.

9.30 pm came. They were going Kirsty to go in. It was really spooky. "But Emma said, trying to be a ghost," & in. Amy squealed.

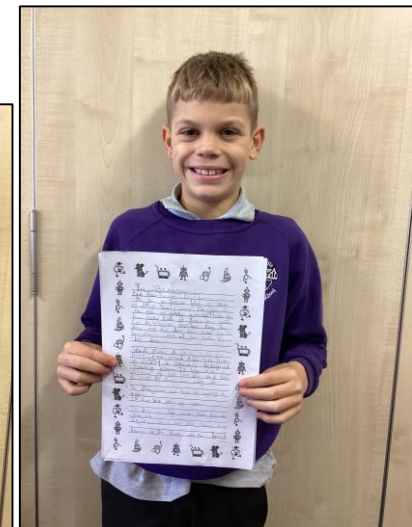

10 pm was around the corner. Kirsty went in. "Come on girls, let's leave," yelled Emma, hoping to sound heroic. She opened the door into the living room. She heard a bang. It sounded like it was coming from the cellar.

The task for this piece of writing was to write an information report. In geography the Year 5 children have been learning about Biomes. Enjoy reading Amelia's report which includes technical vocabulary, interesting facts with detail that captures the interest of the reader.

The Taiga Biome

The taiga biome (which is also known as Boreal or Coniferous Forest) is the world's largest terrestrial biome. The taiga biome is located below the tundra and temperate deciduous forest. The taiga forms a band across North America, Europe, Asia and Russia. Taiga is named after the Russian word taiga, meaning land of little sticks.

Human Process

Most of taiga is uninhabited by humans but there are surprisingly a few major cities in taiga such as Toronto and Moscow. Taiga is endangered due to logging (chopping down trees), mining and tar sand production. Logging in taiga is terrible because the growing season is short. The taiga is popular with cyclists, hikers, canoeists and campers. This could make people want to keep harming taiga and building more camps and hiking sites.

Animals

In the winter most of the animals hibernate (like bears and chipmunks) or migrate (like Canada geese or caribou) further south to find food. You would usually think there were no animals in taiga but your wrong. There are actually many animals in taiga that had adapted to the cold harsh weather. Summer conditions attracts many insects to the porals and bogs in the taiga, so birds migrate to taiga. Up to 3 to 5 million birds (mostly songbirds) migrate to taiga to feed off all the insects. Some of the birds have specially adapted feathers to have the ability to change colour for winter or summer.

Plants

Plants in taiga rarely grow because the growing season is short and almost lasts 3 months of the year. Plants only grow in the summer. As a rule, they have to grow together in clusters to survive the cold harsh weather so they don't get torn apart. Since the growing season is short there's very little variety of plants. The majority of plants are conifers, grass, flowers and mushrooms. Conifers are evergreens and don't lose their needles like their leaves in the winter so there are very few nutrients in the soil.

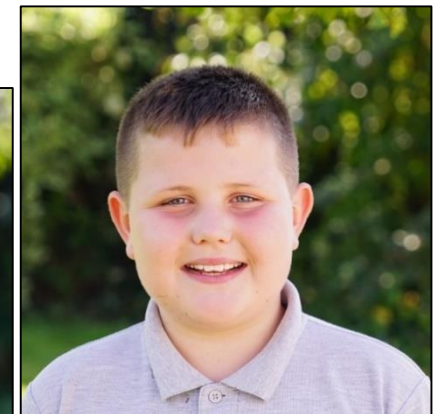

Conclusion

The taiga biome (also known as coniferous boreal forest) is the world's largest terrestrial forest. It is located below the tundra and temperate deciduous forest. Taiga forms a band across many countries and is named after the Russian word taiga meaning land of little sticks. Taiga is being destroyed and we need to do something!

Wolf

Blood-stained teeth reveal his last meal
 Swirling tornadoes of death envelope the eyes of the wolf
 His pupils rip apart your soul like Satan does to his victims
 His iris is identical to an uncontrollable wildfire
 His claws prepared to slice open your flesh
 The odour of out-dated meat pierces through the air from his fur
 His pinned-back ears intimidate his foes while creating pure aggression
 Beware: those amber eyes in the death of night

Children in Need

We will be celebrating and raising money for Children in Need on Friday 17th November!

From Monday 13th November, Pudsey ears, wristbands, pin badges and raffle tickets will be on sale for the children to buy in school.

In addition to this, the children may wear their own clothes on Friday 17th November and if they have something spotty to wear, that would be fabulous!

We do ask that children do not wear football strips. A contribution of £1 per child would help us to raise funds for Children in Need.

Pudsey ears, badges and wrist bands will be on sale in school from Monday 13th November.

We understand the difficulties of travelling to and from school due to the bus strike but there are a lot of children arriving at school late.

Please help us to establish good time keeping as we feel that this is a vital life skill which will help our children as they progress through their school life and out into the wider world

Well done Charlie What a super star you are!

We would like to share with you this email we have received from Charlie's (Wales) Mum.

Morning,

I just wanted to share with you Charlie's amazing and huge achievement he did at the weekend. He plays and is captain for Crawcrook United u7's football team and scored 13 goals in his game at the weekend (their team winning 15-5). Breaking the record across all age groups (from u7's to u17's) of goals scored by 1 player in a single game. The record was previously 7 goals and he smashed that out of the water scoring 13 goals in 1 game! We're super proud of him and he's absolutely over the moon, as you can imagine - so thought it would be nice to share with you too 😊

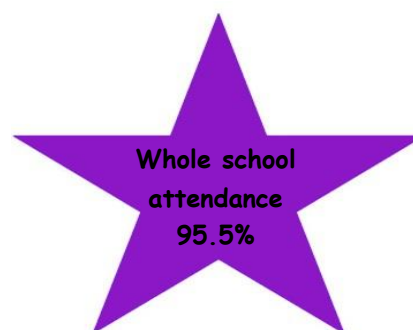

Kind regards,
Sam (Charlie's Mum)
